From this point, we can see Corbusier believe in the natural system in this periods. The source of this worry was, of course, Germany, the perpetual enemy and rival to France. Many of his works say more about the technology and culture of the time period in which they were built than about architecture alone.

Theory of Architecture and the Environment: Corbusier's Creative Struggle

Indicative of this style was simplified geometric form. For centuries progress was a slow moving gear in the evolutionary clock of civilization. Her knowledge of the culture did not come from a several month tour of the country; she has spent years in Bangladesh.
