In Orthodox communities where pregnancy is prized, vaccines and variants leave women confused and afraid

Extreme weather can disrupt operations and supply chains, spelling disaster for both small vendors and global corporations. By working together and seizing the many opportunities that present, business and government can help arrest climate change and nature loss, and contribute to a safer, more liveable planet for all.

Difference Between Weather and Climate for Kids

With children and young people at relatively low risk of death or serious illness from COVID, keeping kids home from school seemed to many to be more harmful than the virus itself. It may also be warmer and have little or no precipitation. To combat that fear, the Orthodox health care professionals who spent last year exhorting their communities to take pandemic guidelines seriously are now turning their attention to building confidence in the new vaccines.
